Atal Bihari Vajpayee Ji, Former Chief Minister of Haryana Shri Babu Banarasi Dasgupta Ji, Former Chief Minister of Bihar Shri Bindeshwari Dubey Ji.

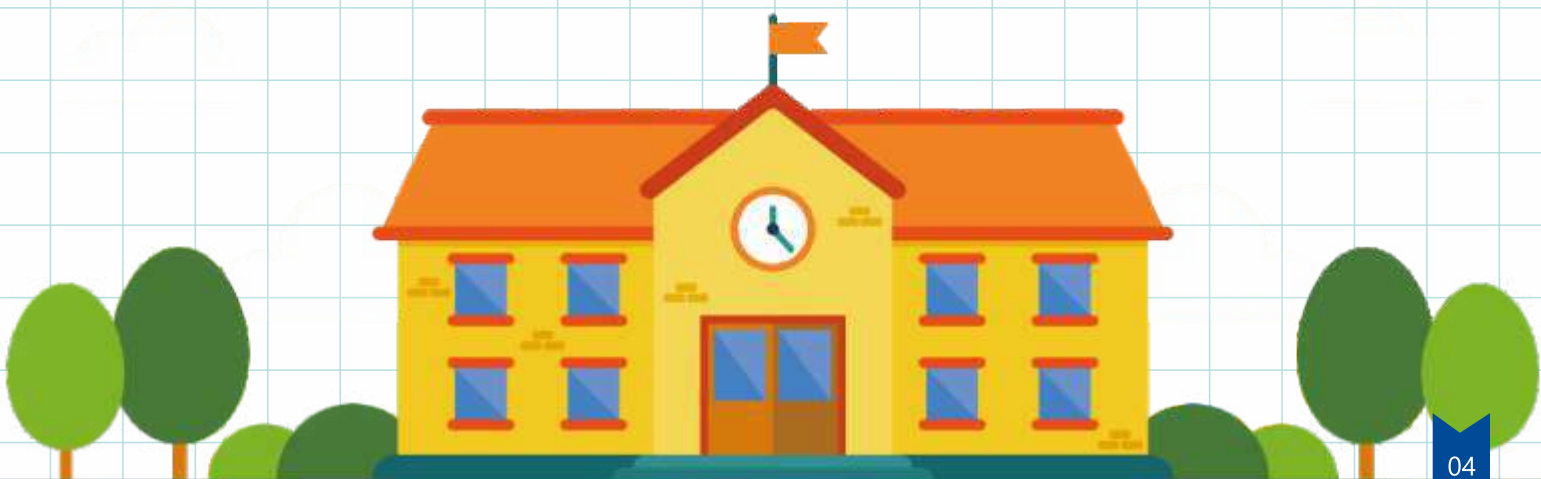

OUR MISSION AND VISION

Maharaja Agrasen Vidyapeeth an upcoming boarding school starting from 2025 with a mission to conceptualize and materialize the ethos of nation-building and Indian culture.

The architects of MAV believe that an educational program should be able to promote the development of a balanced and harmonious personality of the students. To attract and develop exceptional students and teachers from all backgrounds to serve a meritocratic India, inspire them to be just and ethical citizens, train them to be wise and principled leaders and prepare them to enter one of the strongest fraternities for life.

Above all To bring backbenchers to the front bench.

Importance of boarding

Boarding school students tend to develop life skills such as time management, work ethic, and independence in an accelerated manner than a day school student. ... This growth helps many boarders feel adequately prepared to step into college, where these skills are necessary to succeed.

Boarding schools offer students an experience unlike any other: to immerse themselves in their education, grow within a supportive and diverse community, and position themselves for success after school.

LET'S EXPLORE SEVEN TOP ADVANTAGES OF A BOARDING SCHOOL EDUCATION

1. Challenging Academics

A boarding school education is known for being more challenging than a private day school or public school. At The Maharaja Agarsen School, we place a unique emphasis on rigorous academics and experience-based learning. An experience-centered environment helps students grow in self-discipline and develop a strong work ethic that will prepare them for higher education.

2. Peer Learning

In a boarding school setting, you live, play, study, and socialize among your peers. A diverse boarding school setting with students from different backgrounds offers a special opportunity for growth and learning. Students can expand their perspectives and horizons as they learn together both in and out of the classroom.

3. Smaller Class Sizes

Small class sizes can make all the difference in a student's success. When students have the chance to interact with their peers and teachers, they engage with the subject material more closely — a dynamic that makes the information more likely to stick. Teachers and students develop a closer mentor relationship within a smaller classroom. In addition, students often feel more confident and comfortable voicing opinions and sharing their answers.

4. Personal Growth

Living away from home and residing in campus in a dorm setting provides invaluable opportunities for personal growth. Boarding school students tend to develop life skills such as time management, work ethic, and independence in an accelerated manner than a public school student.

While they receive ample care and guidance from teachers, administrators, and dorm parents, as well as their families, boarding students must take an added level of responsibility for their education. This growth is part of what helps many boarders feel adequately prepared to step into college, where these skills are necessary to succeed.

The accessibility of extracurricular activities and clubs means that students must make key time management decisions to prioritize their commitments and create a balanced schedule.

5. A Learning-Conducive Atmosphere

A boarding school is a hub for learning. Many schools offer ample spaces for students to stretch themselves and put their classroom learning into practice. This includes facilities like performing arts spaces, science labs, athletic fields and courts, and arts through spaces designed for photography, dance, music, theater, and media, and the sciences with unique facilities including an engineering, fabrication, and exploration lab as well as an observatory.

6. Advanced Co-curricular Activities

When you live on campus, you have access to a world of choices for both advanced learning and personal growth. With clubs and activities from language learning and competitive athletics to STEM project clubs and the arts, every student has a chance to get plugged in with their niche interests. This is easier than ever at a boarding school, where residential living encourages students to pursue their hobbies and join groups that match their passions.

7. Social Maturity

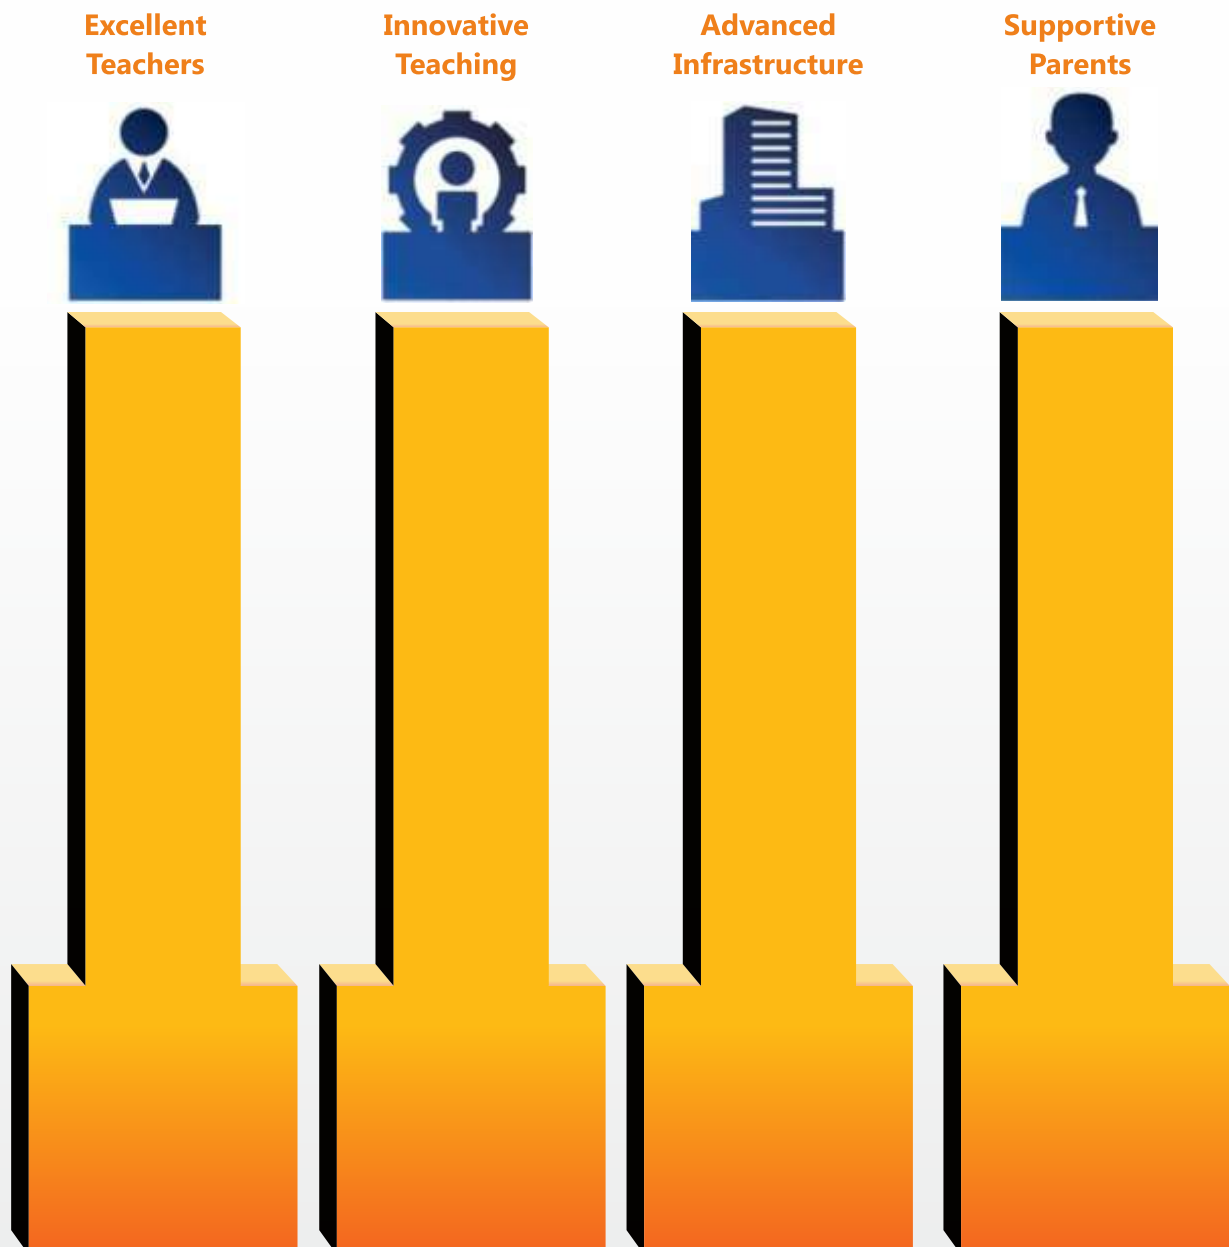

Learning and living among a diverse group of peers has the potential to lead to disagreements. Yet this dynamic paves the way for broadened world views and social maturity. Students learn valuable life lessons about connection and conflict. As a result, they're often more socially prepared and ready to embrace a world full of different people with contrasting points of view.

"Education is not the name of any degree or certificate that can be shown to others as a proof.

BUT..... Education is the name of our Personality, Attitude, Actions, Language and behaviour with others in real. life."

I am happy to say that we are developing a culture in which Team MAV, is working towards a common cause coherently. We share common direction to reach our goals smoothly and easily because we are travelling on the trust of one another.

These activities can raise awareness about disabilities, encouraging students to be more considerate and supportive of peers with different needs.

Heightened Senses: When students are blindfolded, their other senses (hearing, touch, smell) become more acute, which can be a useful exercise in sensory awareness and perception.

Such activities can improve students' ability to notice and interpret sensory information without relying on sight.

INDOOR

According to related researches, the reason why children like playing video games are that they can get fun challenges, relieve their stresses, as well as establish companionship with other players. However, all of these are just a substitute for playing in a playground. In other words, children can get all of these done perfectly in a more healthy and happier environment while enrolling in active indoor activities.
